In the above section's, it shows some files on the server. I want to download them through using curl, but, for some strange reason, it can only retrieve files from the first link. How can I do it for the remaining links?. UPDATE: I replaced the code and it works. Also, I've seen this in other examples I found on the web and the code was basically: curl -o ".file.name" A: The problem is that you have no way of telling the server that you want to follow the redirect to the other links. Normally you can tell the server this by setting up an option like CURLOPT_FOLLOWLOCATION in your call to curl_setopt. In this case, I'd say it would be reasonable to use your results to find out which file names you want, and then iterate over them all manually using curl to download the files. I haven't bothered to do this before because it's a very boring way of doing things, but then I'm not interested in downloading a lot of files at once. Election Update The Republicans have a 40-point advantage on Presidential popularity. This is reflected in the generic ballot, which has swung behind the Democrats for the first time this election cycle. It is hard to read this as an indication of any real trend, given the underlying volatility of the survey. It is possible that the November issue of Gallup will tell a different story, however. The approval rating for the economy is near 50%, a result of the Republican victory on the stimulus bill and a series of major tax cuts implemented since Election Day. Of interest to the party switch is that the party switch in Congress is occurring in Republican districts. There has been a lot of discussion about the high turnout of young voters, particularly among Democrats. The turnout in this age group may be as much as 10% higher than in 2004. The majority of voters think that the majority of their friends share their views. A slight majority of voters (55%) think that the majority of their friends would approve a vote for Obama as President, as opposed to 26% who believe that the majority would disapprove of such a vote. The same idea was reflected in the results of the second presidential debate, where more people felt their friends would approve of Obama, than would disapprove. Americans by the Numbers V
