The record-breaking streamlined Class A4 Pacifics were the flagships of prestigious high-speed steam travel in the UK, and the six surviving ‘Streaks’ are now available for Train Simulator in one special Gathering. During a visit to Germany in 1933, Sir Nigel Gresley was taken by the high-speed streamlined ‘Flying Hamburger’ diesel train, a concept the London & North Eastern Railway had considered for its East Coast Main Line route. However, Gresley believed that steam power could do an equally impressive job and tested the theory with Class A3 ‘Papyrus’. Gresley’s tests were such a success that LNER granted permission to design more streamlined locomotives. The Class A4s were designed for prestigious high-speed passenger services, running from London Kings Cross to Edinburgh, Scotland via York and Newcastle. Both internal and external streamlining improved coal and water usage, and a Kylchap double chimney was proven to improve efficiency, making the Class A4s a much admired model with their distinctive flowing aerodynamic profile. A total of 35 ‘Streaks’ were produced at LNER’s Doncaster Works between and were capable of a 90mph (140km/h) top speed in regular service. However, the Class A4s were record breakers from the outset - Silver Fox attained 113mph (182km/h) in August 1936, making it the highest recorded speed of a regular passenger train at the time. The most famous of days for the Class A4s was on 3rd July 1938. Pulling six coaches and a dynamometer car, Mallard reached 126mph (202.8km/h) at Stoke Bank, breaking the world speed record for steam locomotives of 124.5mph (200.4km/h) previously held by a German DBG Class 05. The record still stands today, making th anniversary of this record breaking occasion. To mark the occasion, the UK’s National Railway Museum (NRM) is bringing all six surviving Class A4s together in one location. With the ‘Streaks’ fully withdrawn from mainline service by 1966, six were preserved – Mallard, Sir Nigel Gresley, Bittern, Union of South Africa, Dominion of Canada and Dwight D Eisenhower. The latter two locomotives were moved to North America shortly after being withdrawn from service with the other four locomotives maintained on preserved railways or in

Back Alley Inn - Extra Shady Cracked Version is a puzzle/action/platform hybrid that tests your intuition. The goal is to escape a mysterious mansion filled with bizarre puzzles and murderers. If that isn’t enough, who knows what else might be lurking in the dark? As the title suggests, “Extra Shady” is an extra “shady” edition of the original game. Feel free to give it a spin and see if the extra shadiness is for you! Our Kickstarter goal is $20,000, which includes the soundtrack and art gallery. This means that if we make it, we’ll be able to pay artists and composers, fund fulfillment, and make improvements to the game. I can't think of a more impactful way to introduce someone to the game than giving them access to your Quick Look feature on their iPhone (iOS 11). This tip will take less than 10 minutes. From here, you can quickly find more information about the game, or view the team, latest art, press mentions and more. You can even play a couple of the levels to get a feel for what the game is like. “Hi! I'm Henry and I'm designing game prototypes,” I enjoy working with my co-worker Ben and his wife Jenn for a variety of game prototyping and game development projects. Though I grew up in a creative family, I do not have any formal education in game design or art. In college I majored in English, and got a C+ in game design. I find the best way to understand the game from concept to completion is to just get involved. I'm constantly playing the prototype, I read the documents, I play the audio, I play the website. We’re all human. Every piece of feedback helps. Every critique is like a recommendation. In all of my game prototyping, I try to always prototype for the player first. This may mean with a game format like an MMO, a single player style, even a local multiplayer gaming model. You may want to use the Apple Pencil, but you may also be able to use your fingers or mouse. I find it is often easier to see at an early stage what the player is going to like. You don’t need a pencil or stylus to prototype. I’ll walk you through a series of steps for creating a prototype that follows the d41b202975

Music and Sound : We would like to first apologize for the delay in posting this, but we still had to finish up the game and get it up to par with the rest of our games. We spent about 5 months working on this game and as expected, the title song is one of our most complicated songs to design. A lot of planning went into making this song the best it can be. Overall, we are extremely proud of the song and you can hear a little bit of our pride for it in our little video we put up earlier. When you start the game, you get to choose between the 34 single player songs and the 5 music packs in the 'add-ons' tab. Choose wisely! We are extremely proud of how smooth and how tight Capsular runs. While we were still trying to get all the bugs out, we tried to squeeze in as many of the minor little things we wanted to add into the game. The result was lots of

Thursday, December 09, 2012 Several Opportunities to Win and Play Poker with Managed Money Last week in the back alley we had an opportunity to win twice! The first time was when we won the blitz hand with a very nice straight vs seven high flop. When the seven came on the turn, my opponent bet, and we called. Turn card showed five, and I thought my hand was good. My opponent hit the river and claimed my hand. But then we had another opportunity to win a bit more. Due to a flop set, we were done, but then, while playing, another player in our group requested a re-deal. The second time, we had two players at once making deals, and the dealer was coming with a very weak five of a kind. We were very good at playing cards, and called to see if our hand would take the bet. It did, and I won the hand with a pair of eights and J ten on the flop, on top of a higher pair. The casino player who requested the re-deal, turned out to be the winning player, so he didn't have to pay us his hand back out, and I was able to give him his winnings. It happened so fast and we made it work, so it was a very good hand to happen to us. It just shows how many doors open in the back alley and near the back alley, and how many opportunities we
