Q: JHipster generating *.java files with the wrong directory I am using JHipster (v4.1.4) to generate a spring boot microservices app, my problem is that the generated *.java files seem to be generated in the wrong directory. In this case there is a file with the name "serviceapi.feature". When I check the.java files are in the directory where my app folder is, but when I run the command ./mvnw clean install I get the error: ERROR: Failed to determine the tool to generate type: Failed to find 'maven-j2ee-plugin' via the configured repositories. Is there a way to configure the default directory location for the generated files? A: Add this to your pom.xml
