Alice: I'm the first of seven children, I'm the youngest of my family. But like my father, I've always been a bit of an... erm... peculiar type. Most people don't call me a freak, but I'm usually the only one who can understand their concerns. At least, for now... After all, I don't have any brothers or sisters, I was raised alone, and I don't really have any friends either. Luckily, my daily lives is easy enough, as I'm usually never really alone. But even if I'm alone, I'm not lonely. Well, mostly. I have a twin. A twin, not an exact double. She's a little bit taller than me, and a little bit skinnier, but most

But, I don't want to get into the details, because I don't want anyone to think I'm crazy. So I go by the name of 'Alice'. I'm 21 years old now. Detective: I'm a detective, working for the Police Dept in a small town in Arizona. I was in it from the very beginning, from the moment I was 10 years old. I'm 22 now. I've been at this job for years. I really don't care much for anyone. If there's something I can do to help someone, then I will. If not, I don't care. My job isn't all that interesting. I mostly spend my time chasing down petty criminals. My only real challenge, at work is a young woman of my age, although I can't stand her. Her name's Elizabeth "Liz" Thorold. She's only 26, but her life has been nothing but trouble, ever since she turned 18. I believe she used to be quite

Her parents are both dead, and she has been taken in by the Thorold family. But... I don't really understand her. I mean, I'm sure there's a good reason for her behavior, but I'm not sure how to explain it to myself. What can I say? She's a psycho

What's new in Enigmarella:

* (Adachi, 1931) \[\[CR57]\], sometimes recognised only as a subgenus of *Demospongia* A.A. Adams, 1854 \[\[CR56]\]. Although *Caleenx* is known from only two localities, only one of these *Caleenx*-bearing specimens was found in a deep sea habitat, i.e. on an island in the Lembeh Strait (Fig. 3{ref-type="fig"}). It was in spicule clumps attached to a sponge identified as a member of the genus *Hyrtios* (Maiabe, 1825) \[\[CR78]\] which is found in a high-energy coastal environment (Fig. 3{ref-type="fig"}). *Caleenx* inhabits shallow to subtropical upwelling environments, including trawled deep-sea habitats (Fig. 3{ref-type="fig"}).

Conclusion {#Sec19} ===== The new genus *Pseudospongia* gen. n. and species *Pseudospongia eburnea* sp. n. were described from shallow to brackish waters of northwest Australia (i.e. the Gascoyne and Kinran coastal areas). The predominantly reef-associated *Pseudospongia* comprises two subgenera, the tribes Torisiinae and Phuwanatiini. *Megalochroa* gen. n. described herein brings the number of sponge genera represented in the families Rhizaclidae and Chalinidae from one genus in two families to four. The findings of all four rhizaclid genera represent the first records of rhizaclid sponges from deep-sea habitats. The description of new sphaerocladid taxa revealed the presence of four more sphaerocladid sponge genera as isolated representatives of rare rhizaclid types. Three new haptoriid genera are reported herein. The description of new sphaerocladid and haptoriid taxa and the detailed image collection of *Pseudospongia* help us to resolve some of the taxonomic uncertainties within the Rhizaclidae. The families Ch
