She started recording again in late 2005, after moving to Santa Monica to be closer to the music community. Her groupmate Kavya Kane - who had performed at a number of college conferences with Shontelle - assisted in writing the songs. One day, while recording in the studio, Shontelle heard that she had an email from a record label at Universal Records with an offer for her to record. She was ecstatic and decided to jump at the chance. Since then she had made several appearances on talk shows and even done some live performances. At the end of 2004 and beginning of 2005, she signed with Motown/Universal Records as a solo artist. In May 2005, she released her first major single, "Got Me Good", produced by The Runaways' Tommy Lee. The song was written and recorded by her and Jermaine Stewart at the time when she was still going to school. In July of the same year, her debut album First Impressions of Earth was released, followed by a single, "Pon de Replay". It was well-received by critics, but did not sell as well as she had hoped. In July 2006, the song "Summertime Love" was released as the follow-up single. She later released her second studio album, Sick and Tired, in June 2007. In early 2010, she released her third studio album, Loud, an edgier version of her already existing sound. In 2010, she had a guest appearance on a single by the Cheetah Girls, "Forever in Che
