Oral administration of tetrandrine to man: absorption, distribution, excretion and toxicity studies.

Absorption, distribution, excretion and toxicity studies were carried out in man after oral administration of tetrandrine (TET) to test its toxicological value. TET is an alkaloid extracted from a plant named Stephania tetrandra, which is widely distributed in South China and Southeast Asia. Its daily dose at therapeutic level is 3-5 g. TET is distributed widely in the body and eliminated mainly via kidney. After a single oral administration of TET at dosage of 5 mg/kg, most of the dose had been recovered within 36 h in urine and feces. AUC (0-12 h) (ng X h/ml) of TET in man was 79,048 +/- 15,746. The absolute bioavailability of TET in man was approximately 74.3% and the time of peak plasma concentration (Tmax) was 2.1 +/- 0.4 h. BluRay 720P .1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor structure and a method of forming the same. More particularly, the present invention relates to a semiconductor structure comprising a silicon-containing insulation film with embedded metals and a method of forming the same. 2. Description of Related Art In a semiconductor device, an insulation film is formed on a semiconductor substrate to separate metal interconnects of different layers and to avoid the metal interconnects from directly contacting with the semiconductor substrate.

However, during the formation of the metal interconnects, the insulation film also gets a certain pattern, which forms a micro-hole or a deep trench in the insulation film. Typically, the micro-hole, which is formed in the insulation film, is filled with a metal plug to avoid leakage and an electrical short. Nevertheless, due to the patterns of the metal interconnects and the micro-hole, a void is formed in the insulation film. Thus, the dielectric constant of the insulation film is too high. Moreover, after metal interconnects are formed, a post-passivation interconnect (PPI) structure, such as a solder bump, is formed to interconnect the chip and the package substrate. However, the insulation film is inevitably formed on the chip surface during the formation of the PPI structure. Consequently, the PPI structure has poor adhesion with the insulation film, which may result in poor electrical connection. Stag & Doe (band) Stag & Doe was a band from Yorkshire that was formed in 2006 and began playing as a joke. The band quickly gained attention for their unusual name and began touring, posting videos to their MySpace profile. The band has played with label-mates Emperor/ToX. After 3 years the band will disband on October 31. History Stag & Doe's 3 members are Mike Parkin (lead vocals), Oli Chegworth (bass) and Daniel Smith (drums). The band started as a joke when they met at their music college in Sheffield. They soon became friends and took the band on, just for fun and to see if they could play live gigs. Despite breaking up in 2008, the band has not broken up and in September 2012 they released their "Debut album" - "The Best of the Worst" which is on their own label "Wit's End Recordings" www.witswedr.com.
