List | Hd SubsEmbodiments of the present invention relate to a vacuum processing device which is connected to an external vacuum processing device and is supplied with a process gas inside a chamber. In a vacuum processing device, when a shield plate is detached from a vacuum processing chamber and the state of vacuum inside the chamber is lost, the shield plate may be damaged due to a large amount of contaminants accumulating on an inner wall of the shield plate. Conventionally, as a method for preventing the shield plate from being damaged during detachment of the shield plate from the vacuum processing chamber, a method is known, in which a heater inside the shield plate is switched on at the time of detachment of the shield plate from the vacuum processing chamber. In this method, although gas outside the vacuum chamber can be prevented from flowing into the vacuum chamber via a gap between the shield plate and the vacuum processing chamber, the gas inside the vacuum chamber still may flow out of the
