of your recipes. I'm just 1/2 my way through volume 1 but it's been excellent. Just because it's not about being vegan doesn't mean you can't do it well. Hi Leah, it's been a long time since we spoke. I always enjoy your blog. You always provide an enjoyable look into vegan/vegetarian cuisine. You are also kind enough to include a link to my books when you mention them on your blog. All the best to you and your family, and I'm so happy to see you around again. I'm still working on a book but I'm finishing up a lot of the recipes and writing a bit about creating your own sauces and whatnot. It's coming along slowly but I'm looking forward to sharing it with you soon. I hope you're doing well with your own vegan restaurant, that sounds amazing. Great to see you back!! Just some changes that you need to watch for. First and foremost, I love how you can find like-minded people on this site. It's a great community, with people providing both serious vegan inspiration as well as being non-vegan people too; helping each other with recipes, resources, etc. That said, veganism is a choice and you're entitled to your opinion on the matter. Just because you have choices doesn't mean there's no conflict. People all over the world who love others are real and will be affected by this movement. That's very difficult to live with - one day, you may be friend or family to someone who becomes vegan and it hurts in your heart. These conflicts have existed for years - many of you know that I have a very strong opinion on the matter - so I'm just helping people understand that veganism is a choice that affects real people, and a growing number of people for the better, in a lot of ways. Keep doing what you're doing, Leah - we need your passion and wisdom. Hi Leah, it's been a while since I've last looked, but I'm a vegan too, have for a while. I remember when you first started out, with all your enthusiasm and energy. I enjoy reading your blog, and learning a lot! I've been mostly vegetarian

. Many may accept the terms and give good sex, but the fact is that sexual assault is still very under-reported, not just in the U.S., but globally as well. This is why many don't report abuse, even though many individuals, especially women, know that they are victims of assault. I am a survivor of sexual abuse and I'm so glad that #MeToo has caught up with the reality of sexual assault and abuse in today's society. It is critical that abuse be taken seriously. Additionally, awareness of it is just as important. While so many of us knew that this sort of behavior was prevalent and rampant, those who commit abuse are not likely to admit to it and may even deny what took place. It also further exposes the hypocrisy of other individuals who are victims of abuse. This society plays a huge role in creating this false environment by hiding behind the excuse of "boys will be boys" and "asking for it". Sexual predators rarely wear a sign that says "I'm a sexual abuser". We may begin to wonder if we are in control of our own body and bodies of others. How do we take back that control? How do we educate? How do we teach self respect and body integrity in our society? These are very real questions, and ones which we must answer and do what is necessary to eradicate this type of behavior from our society. #MeToo is an important part of this process of not only speaking out and creating awareness, but also holding each other accountable. It is a step in the right direction that gives a voice to all the survivors. I'm proud of all the women that have been and will be speaking out today! ****All quotes are from the Urban Dictionary "MeToo is the belief that ANYONE can be a sex assailant. It refuses to address the 10-year fact pattern of rape by powerful men in high places."-Mimi Starnes, Feminist and Activist "#MeToo should always be followed by #HandsOffMyRights, empowering people to reject, and explain why they can't, sex."-Alexander McCobin "#MeToo is a revolution. It is not an 'event'. It is not a 'movement'. It is not 'a trend'. It is not a hashtag
