Pugmire: Treasure of the Sea Dogs is a dog sized adventure where you'll sail the oceans of a classic fantasy sea dog kingdom, investigating a murder, recovering stolen pearls, and fighting monsters on the high seas. Cats have broken free of civilization, and greed has driven them to terrorize the seas! Set sail with one of eight distinct classes of explorers and create your own Pugmire standard guild, then take to the high seas. Explore! Examine ancient ruins, cataloging the knowledge you find. Trade your salvage for treasure and gear, and fend off monsters. Choose your hero's archetype: warrior, rogue, artist, or sage. Choice is a large part of being a dog. Your actions shape your fate, and you are forced to choose between bad and good. Game Design: Eddy Webb Author Notes:This is a short adventure I wrote as a fun companion for the Pugmire anthology, Pirate Emporium. It can be played in one sitting, or over the course of multiple sessions. Editing/QA: Megan Hutchison Genesis Projections: Monkeek, Nunya, SueSojourner, Marscela, Wax, and IsoNerd Lyrical Theme Music by Sarah Jaffe Music Performed By: Sarah Jaffe and the Chapaira Ensemble The Final Nights A_Myth - 3rd Quarter 2015 (3Q2015) To be sated by the truth, I must rid myself of everything mortal. Q: You know that I go to the graveyard every night. You know that I tarry there for many hours and sometimes I speak to the dead, but I do not like to tell you of this. Would it be good of you to lie with me? Are we not all one blood? A: I have lost only one of my many eyes, yet what remains has grown blind. I live in the dark because the light has been shut from me. I cannot see your face, but I know that you look in my eyes, waiting for me to tell you something. What can you say? The past is a starless sea, and no light will fill it. What is there for you to see there, beyond our bitterness and despair? What shall I say to you when I say: I do not speak? I am a stone marked with the blood of slayers, of my own brothers and sisters who have been betrayed.

Demesne Game Review by Jeff Greer on Aug 25, 2017

[2/5] A small game, but a lot of fun. Average graphics aside, the gameplay is top-notch. A little bit of a puzzle that builds up the story, but overall a game you can enjoy the short time you spend on it. Go for it![Demesne Game Review]

It's time for a heroic adventure and playing as William Tell! Do you have what it takes to earn the respect of your community and avenge your son's death by defeating Gessler in his plot to murder? Get ready for chills, thrills and even a couple of jump challenges! This is William Tell's first official story based game, narrated by none other than William Tell himself! In this full of fun game you will need to slay a few dozen Gessler and his squad of Reeves (helpless bandits with bows and balls) during your quest to defeat your archenemy! Our small indie team is hard at work creating this game on a Kickstarter-like platform. We are just a few and would love to have your support! We are proud to announce our first Kickstarter supported game, "Crossbow Warrior". We will work for as long as needed to develop this game to its full potential. Due to the rapid development of the game we will ask our community to help us with the testing and we will be super grateful for every help you can provide! For our previous games "No Taboo: American Style" and "No Taboo: Classics of Strategy", we implemented a special "Patreon" like system where you can support us with recurring donations. You will earn quite a number of benefits like early access of upcoming games and your name in credits and our games are financed with "patron" money. We are seeking funding to finish the game and release it on Steam! When the game is released you will be able to reach us via a message board and discuss issues and developments with the development team. We invite you to join our community on a new gaming platform where you can become part of the team of our games. Summer is here! What is summer without berries in season? This week I made some Strawberry Zucchini Soup. This was my first time making soup. I had a taste for it and it really wasn't that bad. I like my soup spicy so I added a few spicy peppers. I thought that having a warm soup on a chilly Saturday was perfect./ * Licensed to the Apache Software Foundation (ASF) under one * or more contributor license agreements. Republicans said they'd support the measure if Democrats did not include other concessions, such as an overhaul of the merit pay system. They vowed to keep working on it. "We are moving forward with plans to pass this pension reform in the spring and we are hopeful that the Democrats will return to the table," Senate Finance Committee Chairman Christopher M. Kennedy

Students and Supporters Pulled From Seattle Dialysis Clinic Workers across the country face growing pressures to prove their commitment to unions. When Taylor Brickman decided to join the union that represents her colleagues at the Seattle dialysis clinic where she works, she felt relieved. "I'm hoping it provides a little more stability," she said of her job at Life Care Group, a chain of dialysis clinics operated across the U.S. and Canada. After years of sacrificing leaves to cover for her boyfriend when he traveled for work, she was also grateful to her job's flexible hours. Complaints of gender and sexual harassment at the Life Care clinics in the Seattle area led the staff at Life Care Group's headquarters in Kirkland, Washington, to fire hundreds of employees at the chain's Seattle facilities in October, leaving nurses and other hospital workers scrambling to find new jobs at a time when the unemployment rate for non-elderly women is over 9 percent. Thousands of current and former Life Care workers have joined the SEIU-UHW, the union that represents workers at nearly 5,000 health facilities in Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and New Mexico. The center of organizing activity for the union is the West Coast Health Care Workers United, a coalition of about 180 workers from Portland to San Diego. "It was a pretty universal response from staff," said Brickman, who started a Facebook group after losing her job that grew to more than 300 members with similar stories. "They're frustrated and scared, worried about their future." SEIU-UHW leader Wendy Lee, who started organizing as a clinic nurse in California, jumped at the opportunity. She returned to her office at the union's headquarters in Washington, D.C., and manned her phone all day, talking to worried former colleagues about whether they'd be able to find jobs. "My phone blew up with calls from nurses and clerks and medical aides saying 'I'm out of a job, help me,'" she recalled. "They were being used as punching bags. It's like, why? Why?" Lee said she was a single parent raised by parents who suffered with the ailments she cared for. "Being a healthcare worker is the thing I know in the world and my family's

Mr Robert Hickey of Los Angeles, California, was the first of the victims to be identified by the White House, as he suffered from a partially charred cornea. The circumstances are r, he may have been in the path of totality or entirely invisible to the sun. It is the first major solar eclipse to touch the US in 1,000 years and Mr Hickey, a Scot, became the first victim in the US. It is understood he stood in front of his eclipse viewing glasses after watching a livestream on his phone. He caught fire over several minutes but despite seeking treatment he is ind. Mr Hickey is suffering from a condition known as solar corneal edema, which is often caused by too much light shining on the eye. Dubbed the "space balls" or "bowling ball" of the sun, Mr Hickey's doctors are reportedly bracing themselves for other causalities. And in an interview Mr Hickey said he was already planning to return to the skies
