Dell Studio XPS 8100 BIOS chip, latest version A05. Jan 23, 2014 · I have an Alienware M18x R1 and recently I got my BIOS flashed to A05. I use a "locked" firmware version, not "unlocked", and my BIOS update utility doesn't recognize that it is unlocked. The BIOS is fine and all the issues have me concerned. Can I update to factory unlocked A05 and if so, how can I recover from the current state? BIOS. Alienware. dell xps m17x m18x. dell dell xps m18x. bios chip dell e1410. d0c515b9f4

You can read the complete history of comments on this page on our forum. Open a New Topic. There is a $110 BIOS upgrade fee, and $140 labor to replace it. If you want to try to recover the firmware, there's plenty of threads on the topic. Good luck! A: As far as we know, the firmware that comes with the Alienware M18x R4 is the A09. If it was the A12, you'd have to unlock it with the same keys. But as it is, you'd need to unlock it with : . But if you're planning on staying with Alienware, the firmware is only A09, so you can just unlock it with this : . Just don't try that on an A12, there is a chance of brick. It's likely that you're stuck with an A09, so you'd have to go with the unlock option: . And according to this, you'll have to unlock it to use the SFV tool (software framework versioning). For this, it depends how you installed your OS. If it was a Windows Install Disc, then you should use keys32, otherwise you'd have to download the BIOS.exe directly. If you used a USB Install, it should be as simple as running the BIOS.exe and continuing with the installation. If you're planning on buying new hardware, I suggest you to get a new M18x R3. It's a pretty cheap upgrade. A: I have the same model of the Alienware M17x R4 and decided to upgrade to an A12 BIOS. I am so glad to have unlocked my laptop. You just need to be a little more careful. I have complete instructions, but it wouldn't hurt to check them out before following them. Q: How to prevent ContentManager.LoadFromStorage to store game-specific data on the web I'm using ContentManager.LoadFromStorage to download game-specific data and store them in a database. However, what if someone breaks into the web hosting and replaces the file on the site? Does ContentManager.LoadFromStorage overwrite the game-specific data that was downloaded before to a blank database? Also, I have to save the type of the settings, right? I can't just store strings in the database. A: ContentManager.LoadFromStorage
