Both abnormally high and low levels of serum insulin, glucose, total and free thyroxine, total T3, and total T4 are commonly encountered in psoriasis. Contrary to customary practice, it is hypothesized that psoriasis results from decreased rather than increased insulin levels. Insulin probably is involved with mechanisms other than glucose oxidation to aid in the elimination of oxidized compounds formed during the inflammatory process. This hypothesis is presented and supported by other evidence. Low serum glucose is likely to be the direct result of this decreased insulin level and, accordingly, abnormalities in glucose transport and utilization are also considered.Q: how to monitor the size of disk space used by particular user in linux I have nginx+php5 web server. There are 2 web sites running on my machine and 1 user (lets say name is user1) is using more than 20GB of space. How can I monitor the size of disk used by user1. A: There are two ways how you could do this: With ps you can list the memory usage of the processes belonging to the user. $ sudo ps axo user,rss | sort -n -r If you mean the disk usage of the disks you mount, you could do it with iotop. $ sudo apt-get install iotop Then you can do $ sudo iotop You can even get the exact usage with the -w option: $ sudo iotop -w Carmarthen County Council elections Carmarthenshire County Council in Wales is elected every four years.
