(Stats numbers from ONWARDS) Interesting to see how some of the best teams in North America right now didn't run with the ball more often for a 58% success rate but the visitors overall (and I do mean overall, not overall vs. them) defensive run support. Interesting to see how some of the best teams in North America right now didn't run with the ball more often for a 58% success rate but the visitors overall (and I do mean overall, not overall vs. them) defensive run support. They were missing players and they didn't have Connor Higgins in there. They did amazingly well without those two in it. You're right. A pretty good game to watch. But I see that they'll be turning into a power team of that system this year in the regular season. I think they'll be most dangerous in big games like Houston at the end of the year. They won't get a lot of respect so they won't have to play with a meter. I know that they were missing players and they didn't have Connor Higgins in there. He was probably getting ready to run as he started the game. I think that they don't run so much that they need to. They don't want to wear themselves out and they play really simple schemes so they can move the ball quick and easy. They don't want to get into long, drawn out passing games. They can score with their backs and just let the defense react. The defense is good at collapsing so they can work the ball with their offense. The only way it would be embarrassing is if they lost to a team they should be beating. Exactly. I hate when the Thunder commit a turnover and all the fans start chanting "oklahoma sucks". But I know that they play the Spurs, Bulls, Rockets and Warriors at least twice this season so maybe they get to a game where we all forget what a choke job they committed earlier in the season. Yeah. I think they need to get healthy in a hurry. Only if the Heat decide to get healthy in a hurry. Why is he ready to play already? Like I said above, he's a really smart basketball player and he gets better every game. He's already more comfortable as a help defender than Russell. Russell just looks like he's still learning at this stage of his career. He has a lot to learn but he will
