For fun and for profit; a rare art that feeds the soul! What if the great painter and artist Leonardo da Vinci had been a computer engineer? What if this book had been dedicated to the subject of animal behavior? This book shows the fascinating, sometimes amazing ways in which we behave both in our society and in the natural world. The authors examine how animals use tools, communicate, solve problems, assess threats, maintain relationships, and explore their environment. With clear explanations and visual examples, they show the profound ways in which we are not so different from them. The concepts and examples presented in this book will appeal to readers of all ages, and they will broaden your understanding of yourself as well as of the wider world. This edition includes interviews with leading experts in animal behavior, expanded resources on animal communication, and a chapter on the impact of synthetic chemicals on animal and human behavior. It also features a unique digital interactivity component, including a live web lab that allows readers to experiment with the theory and the examples, as well as a virtual reality learning guide that exposes students to the virtual environments that animals use in their natural settings.
