In this video tutorial, I'll be showing you how to use Apple's QuickTime to create an animated intro for your video. The reason I like to use Apple's QuickTime is because it's not only incredibly easy to use, but it also has a lot of cool features. First of all, I like to be able to create my own intros, which then can be used as a regular video, for example when sending a video to a printer, or as an animated gif. Secondly, and maybe even more importantly, I'm a sucker for animation, and I really like the fact that in QuickTime I can easily create my own cartoon-like sequences. And finally, I like to be able to export them to video so they can be played directly on my Mac, as animated intros are great for web videos, and even short video games. You can learn how to use QuickTime in this video tutorial, and you can also learn a lot more about the application by watching this video in my "Keymacro" Course. I have a free preview available for my courses, so if you want to take the free preview, please go to this website to register for your free preview, and then click on the "Free Trial" tab to learn more. So, let's get started! Apple's QuickTime is a powerful application that is by no means limited to one single use. You can use it to do absolutely anything from text and image animation, to compositing, and even exporting video. So, what I want you to do in this video tutorial is to create a cartoon-like intros for your own videos. You will also learn how to use one of the coolest features in QuickTime, which is the Crop frame tool. I think it's always a good idea to start with a quick preview of your animated intros, before you start to import any files, which makes it much easier to spot potential problems. So, let's get started! First of all, I want you to go to the File menu, and select New. Then, from the Import Folder, I want you to navigate to your 2edc1e01e8

Today is the first day of Community Day, which means it's time for some sports. The question is, what sports? While I'm not the biggest sports fan, I have no problem watching and arguing about them when I am. So, this year's Community Day for me is Football, as we watch the season opener of the Cleveland Browns vs. Tennessee Titans. We begin the day with the opening kickoff, and then we hit the games as they happen. And there's plenty of updates on each one. So, enjoy! Kickoff is at 4:00pm, and starts at 7:30pm. Bed Bugs Infestation Tops in Virginia this Year Wochit May 5, 2014 7:01 pm You might have noticed it in your hotel room. One of the more dreaded of all home infestations are bed bugs. There are about 100 different species of bed bugs, and the ones that we encounter the most, a.k.a. "the common bed bugs," are the Oriental or Chinese bed bugs. The Oriental bed bugs are much smaller than the Mexican and American bed bugs and look just like a spider. Oriental bed bugs can be pretty hard to spot, but they do leave a few telltale clues. Once you've located the "spider" it's time to call pest control. When you call for bed bugs, you'll want to have them inspect your furniture, mattress, and bedding for evidence of bed bugs. You can also have them dispose of any materials they find that look like they've been contaminated. Wash all clothing that you are wearing at night and other bed bug hunting equipment with an appropriate insecticide such as malathion. We'll be back tomorrow with some tips on how to battle bed bug infestations. Today, we got the results from the grand jury investigation into the death of Freddie Gray. The report is expected to reveal many details about the poor treatment Gray was given while in police custody. While the investigation found no direct evidence of foul play, there are serious questions about the conditions in which Gray was detained.
