As you can see I'm in a very difficult position with these Big Online company's that want to Associates my blogs, so I'm trying to say "NO" and stay static in my own business, and make more money doing what I do best! I know many of you are hurting because you never asked if I would review a product...please know I appreciate the support you have and I will continue to get the product cleared to post reviews free of charge! For those of you in a similar position I would like to recommend several sites that I think are great and have great product reviews, and I would like to recommend some Companies for you all to consider when you want an honest review of a product. The following is the sites I would suggest...I want to underline that there is NO SALE of my blog audience on any of these sites! I'd appreciate your comments and feedback on the internet marketing company I want to work for, and are NOT looking for approval of my blogs, just letting you know you can write reviews of products, and it gets free product (technically) and doesn't involve any way of making money like writing a review full time...it's simply a part time job that I do to help a marketing company supply product reviews. And there's no other reason why I would do that (other than good quality product reviews), I'd love to share my knowledge and help others.

Adobe is applying AI to its latest flagship software, CS6, the most important upgrade in the program's nearly 20-year history. While AI in the past has brought mostly small improvements, this year's upgrades signal more sweeping changes for Photoshop. Yet even with the new versions, it's a good idea to work with Photoshop at least once to become familiar with the tools before choosing an AI program to use.

Buttons are automatically added to your Photoshop canvas based on the tool you are using. So this means there are buttons for click up (increase the size of your brush stroke), click right (increase the length of your stroke) and click down (decrease the size of your brush stroke). Basically this can also be adjusted by hitting the 'A' or 'B' keys on the keyboard to increase or decrease the size of your brush stroke sizes. A Font panel is a great way to preview, compare, and apply different fonts to your content. Through the panel, you can select text and fonts with a single click, view sample text and fonts, and even preview text in different sizes. In addition to fonts, you can also access many of the other formatting tools you see in Photoshop like size and type, kerning, tracking, leading, and tabs. The Gradient tool allows you to create and apply convenient and natural-looking radial and linear colors to your artwork. In addition to setting the angle and properties, you can use the Gradient tool to copy, split, and merge colors. And with Linear Gradient Converter, you can create and edit standard linear gradients so you can use them in Photoshop as well as design sites like Behance.
